security issues have traditionally been defined in military terms yet the post cold war security landscape contains numerous non military challenges to security in this 2001 analysis alan dupont argues that an emerging new class of non military threats has the potential to destabilize east asia and reverse decades of hard won economic and social development he shows that these transnational shifts must be grasped and dealt with by governments and non government organizations both regionally and internationally if conflict is to be avoided transnational threats stem from overpopulation deforestation and pollution global warming unregulated population movements transnational crime virulent new strains of infectious diseases and other issues not previously associated with international security collectively they represent a new agenda and pose novel challenges for foreign and defence policy this highly informative compelling and authoritative book is essential reading for east asia specialists and makes a significant contribution to international security debates throughout the past three decades east asia has seen more peace and stability than at any time since the opium wars of 1839 1841 during this period china has rapidly emerged as a major regional power averaging over nine percent economic growth per year since the introduction of its market reforms in 1978 foreign businesses have flocked to invest in china and chinese exports have begun to flood the world china is modernizing its military has joined numerous regional and international institutions and plays an increasingly visible role in international politics in response to this growth other states in east asia have moved to strengthen their military economic and diplomatic relations with china but why have these countries accommodated rather than balanced china s rise david c kang believes certain preferences and beliefs are responsible for maintaining stability in east asia kang s research shows how east asian states have grown closer to china with little evidence that the region is rupturing rising powers present opportunities as well as threats and the economic benefits and military threat china poses for its regional neighbors are both potentially huge however east asian states see substantially more advantage than danger in china s rise making the region more stable not less furthermore although east asian states do not unequivocally welcome china in all areas they are willing to defer judgment regarding what china wants and what its role in east asia will become they believe that a strong china stabilizes east asia while a weak china tempts other states to try to control the region many scholars downplay the role of ideas and suggest that a rising china will be a destabilizing force in the region but kang s provocative argument reveals the flaws in contemporary views of china and the international relations of east asia and offers a new understanding of the importance of sound u s policy in the region
